The first or sole Notice should read --

Subject to any disclaimer, the term of this patent is extended or adjusted under 35 U.S.C. 154(b) by 167 days.

Column 2

Line 7; Below "said container." insert -- Preferably, the first end comprises an extension part having a portion with an increased cross-section (compared to the cross-section of the other part of the cannula). A preferred solution is thus to, for example, injection mould a cannula with a tip at one end and an extension part at the opposite end. The extension part is used for attaching the cannula tightly to the container. Preferably, the cannula is inserted into said pocket of said container in order to establish said fluid communication between said pocket and said cannula. -- as a new paragraph.

Line 18-28; Below "cover member." delete "Preferably, the extension part has a cross-sectional shape comprising sharp edges in the plane between the base member and the cover member, and more preferably comprises a rhombic, triangular or fin-like cross-sectional shape. This cross-sectional shape (in a plane perpendicular to the longitudinal axis of the cannula) of the extension part provides a smooth transition between the extension part and the surrounding base and cover member, and the sharp edges help to avoid hollow spaces between the base member and the cover member, because the sharp edges lay in the plane between the base and the cover member."
